

MATC Neurodevelopmental Services / Autism provides multi-disciplinary consultation for school age children and youth with Autism Spectrum Disorders. This service is provided to both schools and families. This program is located at 228 Maryland street.

MATC offers a variety of workshops and seminars that provide information about Autism Spectrum Disorders for parents, caregivers, day care workers, educational assistants, teachers, resource teachers, and other professionals. Participants in Building Connections will benefit most from the content of this presentation already having a basic understanding of Autism.

Building Connections

This seminar explores the core deficits of Autism Spectrum Disorder from a developmental perspective. Adults who live and work with children with ASD will learn the importance of taking on the role of a guide to target the core deficits and work to build the foundational skills that are required for children to be able to learn, socialize, and function in their daily routines. Session participants will learn ways to guide children to experience meaningful connections in their exploration and participation in the social world. Strategies and techniques to develop the child's ability to self-regulate, think, learn, and problem solve will be explored. The seminar will include lecture, group activities, and video review
